

Ardysslife Communication

Expiration Date and Manufacturing Date

Dear Distributor,

Due to recent comments and questions that have arisen regarding the labeling of certain nutritional products, we would like to share the following information.

It is important to emphasize that no expired products or products with a near expiration date are shipped from our warehouses.

In accordance with new labeling regulations for nutritional products, there are two dates that may appear prominently on our packaging:

- Best By / Best Before
- MFG Date / Manufacturing Date

Best By Date: Indicates until what date the food retains its properties intact, as long as the package has not been opened. After this date, the product begins to lose some of its physical qualities, but it remains safe to consume.

Manufacturing Date: This is the date on which the product was manufactured and packaged for sale to the public, generally providing a shelf life of approximately two years.

We hope that the above information addresses your concerns.

Best regards,
ArdyssLife Corporate